morrow will say: The feature of the trade situation this week is the renewed strength of wheat and other cereals, iron and steel, and last, but not least, raw wool which has heretofore lagged behind other staples in a discouraging way. The pricemaking features in cereals are not entirely of encouraging character, being chiefly the less favorable reports us to the growing crop west and northwest, and advices of insect damage influencing westcaused in some degree by the continuance of the strike of grain handlers at Buffalo, checking the movement of large quantities new furnaces going into blast, but theke is really be built apparently do not reassure cusers who are beginning to place orders for the first part of next year at present rices. unchanged on the week. Speculation in cotton lags, notwithstanding good trade advices at home and abroad and rather less favorable crop reports. Lumber, as for a long time past, ontinues in excellent demand. Building activity is widespread, prices hold all their old advances and the tendency is rather quiet at last week's decline. Hides and leather are strong at old quotations, a new feature reported this week being a good demand for some grades of upper eather on export account. Mrs. Mary Miller Is Only One of Many Thousands

IN GREATER NEW YORK

Who Believe in the Hocus-Pocus of the Dark Ages,

New York, May 19.-The Journal has the following to say of the practice of the Black Art in New York City:

"For a Weak and Dull Head. 'When a person has a weak head and is often absent-minded, take hold of an ant's hill, put them into a bug, boil the same for six hours in a kettle of water. Draw this water into bottles and distil it in the sun With such water wash the weak and dull head. If the disease is very bad, bathe the patient in such water. The blood of assen should also be drunk."

That is a sample of the magical recipes in the book of Black Art upon which Mrs. Mary Miller, of No. 312 East Twelfth street, who has just been acrested for practising medicine without a license, said that she fully relid. "Everything in that book is right," she said. "I believe it all. There is nothing bad there. And people pay me well for things I do for them that I have learned from that book." Beskles the recipes, some of them outageously absurd in character, that the book contains, there are fany spells and incantations, and these are actually prosunced over the sick people, and their efficacy is thoroughly believed in. That actual black art is relied upon by many thousands of people in Greater New York, and that money is freely paid to those who pronounce incantations and spells, will astonish the greater part of the public. Some, indeed, have known that uperstitious rites were observed by a few here and there, but that black art is widely believed in has hardly been thought of, The book upon which Mrs. Miller implie itly relied, and with numerous other similar "healers" use as the basis of their lucrative business, is entitled "Egyptian Secrets; or White tad Black Art for Man and Beast." is printed in both English and German. For fevers, the following it given as an infallible remedy:

"Write upon three almond kernal the following words, and take them three mornings in succes " 'Hasta, Hava, Shava,'

"Then take a little camphor and make emall lozenges from it, and suspend these from your neck. Leave them three days and nights in that position, and remov them at the same hour of the day that they were fastened to your body." As "an excellent way to prove whether or not a person is a witch," the following

"First-Try to obtain St. John's roots and one ounce of the herb called motio, Write the following letters upon a scrap of paper and put to the root and herbs: Sator. Cross of Christ mildepos. " 'Arepo. Brow of Christ mesepos.

" Tenet. Crass of Christ habenepos, "This must be sewed up in a piece o eather, and if you wish to see the witch, sarry the paper with you in the hour when the first puarter of the moon occurs. You will then perceive that no witch can remain in the same room with you." It seems incredible that such things are dieved in and that such things are praised, but there is no doubt that they are practised and believed in by many. If you wish to fasten any person so that he cannot escape, the following is given as an infallible method: "Take a needle wherewith the gown from a corpse has been sewed and put this needle into the footprints of the person you seek to fasten. Never will that person be able to get away." To be able to see in the darkest night it is merely necessary to "grease the eyes with the blood of a bat." To quench a fire you are told to run three times around the flames, reciting this charm:

"Fire, thou hot flame, "Christ, the worthy, man rules thee. Thou, fire, stand still. "It is my will "Do not spread out any farther,

'In the name of God the Father, Amen,' It is the use of the charms and incantations in cases of real sickness that lifts the book and its users out of the realm of the absurd into that of the dangerous. When the foot of Lizzie Kranz was black from gangrene, and while the gan grene was spreading upward day by day, Mrs. Miller was collecting $3.50 a visit for waving her hands over the poor child's leg and reciting in German;

"Our dear Lord and Redeemer Christ, "Suffered much boils and wounds, "But never had them tied or bound. They fester not, they pester not; "Neither do they ever suppurata."

and so on, through times of gibberish. Charms are given to recite over those who suffer from lung disease, from tooth sche, from neursigia, from any disease "I can cure anything. This book teacher me. I never studied medicine, and did no need to. And there are others like me. That is what Mrs. Miller said, and she was right in saying that there are others like her. The class to which she belongs are widely known as "sympathy bealers, and do a large business, which the Health Department, since the revelations in th case of Mrs. Miller, have determined to de everything possible to break up. Round, Healthy GROWING EXPORTS TO CHINA
